Forsyth Barr Commentary

No Time for Tools Down: Property for Industry (PFI) kept its foot firmly on the pedal this year, continuing its momentum after being among the biggest movers up the leaderboard last year. Its strong (A+) Carbon score improved year-on-year from a B, which acknowledges the work put in to comply with the climate disclosure standards. While PFI has been making lots of positive strides in the C&ESG space, we still see ample headroom for further improvement in the Environmental and Social sections. On the Social side, PFI's grade slipped this year due in large part to the rising bar of expectations in our Methodology. Positively, its Social score has considerable scope to improve with some reasonably easy wins. The Governance section remains a strength, with few weaknesses within the section.
